

WCH ATTORNEY ASKS CHANGE IN SOLDIER BALLOT

R. M. Winegardner Contends Many Will Lose Vote on Black Pencil Ruling

Approximately 100,000 Ohio service men and women face the possibility of disenfranchisement in the November elections if corrections are not made in the Ohio General Code requiring a "black lead pencil" in marking ballots, Reed M. Winegardner, Washington C. H., attorney and Fayette County Democratic Executive Committee chairman, predicted in an open letter to Governor John W. Bricker.

Winegardner urged a special session of the legislature be requested to change existing regulations so that service personnel may mark absentee ballots "with the lead end of a bullet or any other way, just so the precinct election officials can determine what the reasonable intention of the voter was."

Although Winegardner said Wednesday morning as he discussed his letter to the governor that "obviously there is no way of knowing" how the present law and its interpretation would affect the votes of men and women from Fayette County in the service, he declared it was a foregone conclusion that many would lose their votes. There are an estimated 1,500 to 1,800 Fayette County voters in the service.

Winegardner said "boys in the foxholes or shell ruined buildings at the battle front won't have time to look for a black pencil. They'll use the handiest thing they can find that will make a mark."

Section 4785-131 of the Ohio General Code provides for marking ballots with a "black lead pencil," with an added clause that "no ballot shall be rejected for any technical error which does not make it impossible to determine the voter's choice," the Fayette County Democrat explained.

The 1930 secretary of state ruled that "the marking of ballots with other than a black lead pencil shall not be deemed a technical error," Winegardner said. Present secretary of state Edward J. Hummel has ruled ballots marked by other than a black lead pencil "must be thrown out by precinct election officials," the Democrat stated.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, supported Winegardner's request for legislative change in the election laws.

Lausche asserted in a statement: "It is a travesty upon reason and justice if the soldier vote is to be declared invalid because it isn't in compliance with a foolish rule in the state election law which says only a black pencil mark is valid."

who crossed the border into southern France after the Germans had evacuated frontier posts, quoted French military authorities as saying the landing was begun last night under cover of a naval and aerial bombardment.

The operation, the French officials said, was coordinated with a ground attack by American and French forces which effected a junction at noon yesterday on the outskirts of Bordeaux.

The officials declared Allied planes had paved the way for landing with a low level attack and that Allied warships had poured shells into Bordeaux for more than 48 hours.

Bordeaux, a city of 260,000 situated at the mouth of the Gironde River 110 miles north of the Spanish frontier, apparently is the last pocket of organized German resistance in southwestern France. One of France's most important Atlantic ports, it had been employed by the Nazis as a submarine base during the battle of the Atlantic and in Allied hands could serve as a major debarkation point for supplies.

through German defenses, have entered the large industrial city of Grenoble, 140 airline miles north of the Mediterranean coast, it was announced today.

A swift American armored and motorized infantry column plunged into the city, long a hotbed of the French patriot movement, with "French forces of the interior playing an effective support role," Allied headquarters said.

This quick advance put Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's spearhead within less than 240 airline miles from the most southerly points officially announced as reached by American troops below Paris, and it appeared that the two Allied French fronts would be joined much sooner than originally thought possible.

Grenoble, 58 miles southeast of Lyon and situated on a river leading directly to the Rhone valley 30 miles to the west, is 80 miles or beyond the last reported Allied positions in southern France.

Lying in the French Alps, the city has a population of approximately 100,000 and is a rail center of the Paris-Lyon-Marseille route. It also commands access to important mountain passes in eastern France.

Towns taken by the Americans en route to Grenoble included Digne, Sisteron, Aspres, Gap, St. Bonnet and L'Argentiere, the latter 35 miles from the Italian border.

(A broadcast by radio France at Algiers said Allied forces were less than 11 miles from the Italian frontier but there was no confirmation.)

Traps Face Nazis

At Grenoble the Americans were roughly only 70 airline miles from the Swiss frontier and for all practical purposes already had sealed off the Nazi forces in southern France from communication with the enemy in northwestern Italy.

The Americans also were in position, by striking westward, to cut off German units reported fleeing from the Mediterranean beachhead along the Rhone valley.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Geneva said French forces of the interior were reported attacking Lyon.)

An Allied headquarters statement on the northward drive said "enemy resistance was spotty during the advance." Thirteen hours of house to house fighting occurred at Digne, where the Allies captured Maj. Gen. Hans Schubert, a German corps commander.

On the Mediterranean coast, a bitter battle still raged in encircled Toulon, French armor and infantry has pushed virtually into the outskirts of Marseille, and the French occupied Hyeres east of Toulon.

The Allied command announced the total number of prisoners taken since the landings had risen to more than 17,000.

Inside Toulon French troops yesterday blazed their way to points half way between the railway tracks which bisect the city. The naval arsenal was half a mile away and the docks only a few hundred yards.

The desperate defenders fought from well prepared positions with support of heavy coastal guns and depressed anti-aircraft guns. French forces battling their way from the east reached Le Pradet, four miles from Toulon harbor.

Encirclement of Marseille continued on a broad front, with Americans sweeping around to the west and last reported only a dozen miles short of closing the gap on the west. French forces attacking frontally fought forward to three miles from the city's outskirts. American columns were fighting three miles from the Etang De Berre, a virtually landlocked body of water northwest of the city.

A dispatch from Associated Press war correspondent Edward Kennedy said the main German resistance in the area was on another high ridge dominating approach roads from the east. Kennedy said haze and smoke rising from the harbor indicated the Germans were demolishing installations there.

American troops rolling westward from Aix-En-Provence, 15 miles north of Marseille, passed through Velaux in a nine-mile gain. Another column was beyond Euilles, northwest of Aix.

In a march down the Durance valley on both sides of the river of the same name, American spearheads were several miles beyond Cadenet and only 28 from Avignon, on the Rhone River.

LIBERATION OF PARIS IS STARTED BY POLICE; PUBLIC BUILDINGS SEIZED

seized all public buildings, won complete control of the situation, and captured all the Vichy representatives who had not fled.

While Paris is in French hands it is likely there still are German rearguards at Rambouillet and Etampes to the south which are engaging American tank units.

The French capital literally fell under its own weight aided by a heavy push from the French underground. There was no direct drive or assault on the city itself.

The city had been outflanked by American bridgeheads across the Seine to the northwest and southeast and some radio reports, which were not confirmed at supreme headquarters, already placed American tanks at Meaux, less than 25 miles from Chateau-Thierry.

Paris, the city of light, was back in French hands just four years and 74 days from the time Adolf Hitler's troops marched in. The city became the first continental capital of a full-fledged ally to be freed from German domination. Rome has been taken, but Italy started the war as an enemy and now is a co-belligerent.

Police Start Revolt

Lt. Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, commander of the French forces of the interior and military governor of Paris, gave this official version of the deliverance of the capital.

"On the morning of Saturday, August 19, the National Council of Resistance and the Paris Committee of Liberation, in agreement with the national delegate representing the provisional government of the French Republic, ordered a general insurrection in Paris and in the Parisian district."

"French forces of the interior to the number of 50,000 armed men, supported by several hundred thousand unarmed patriots, went into action immediately."

"The Paris police, who had previously gone on strike, seized the police prefecture and the Ile De La Cite. They turned the Ile De La Cite into a bastion, against which German attacks broke down."

"Toward 8 P. M. yesterday, August 22, after a four-day struggle, the enemy had been beaten everywhere and the Patriots occupied all public buildings."

"Representatives of Vichy were arrested or are in flight."

"Thus the people of Paris have taken a prominent part in the liberation of the capital."

"Long live France!"

De Gaulle conferred with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in France two days ago—presumably on details of civil affairs control of the capital which once more is the pride of all France.

(The British radio reported today the head of the French Committee of National Liberation had arrived in Rennes, on the Brittany peninsula, after visiting Coutances, Avranches and a number of other liberated French cities.)

There was no announcement after the De Gaulle-Eisenhower conference. It seemed likely the French, who freed their capital, would be allowed to administer it.

Casualties Unknown

There was no indication in the French communiqué what casualties had been inflicted on the German forces or how many had been captured. Allied airmen for two days have been reporting the Nazis pulling out of the city to the east over every road.

(The Germans did not immediately acknowledge any change in the status of Paris. A DNB broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission at 6:17 A. M. Eastern War time, said "the situation in Paris has calmed down as the result of strict measures, but it cannot be said whether Terrorist and irresponsible elements will not provoke unrest shortly.")

French colonies were quick to begin celebrating liberation of their homeland capital. An Algiers broadcast announced Gen. Georges Catroux had ordered the display of the Tri-Color throughout Algeria and the ringing of church bells. The liberation will be celebrated in Algiers at 6 P. M. by salutes of all the city's batteries and the blowing of sirens on all the city's buildings.

of the Philippines to tiny Marcus Island 1,000 miles southeast of Tokyo. MacArthur's planes hit Ceram, Davao, Vogelkop on Dutch New Guinea, Biak Island, Wewak, Palau, New Ireland, New Britain and Bougainville.

Central Pacific air forces under Adm. Nimitz set fire to two ships near Marcus and attacked Truk and Ponape in the Carolines and Yap Island southwest of Guam. Wake, U. S.-owned island some 900 miles east of Marcus, was hit also. The Wake and Marcus blows could have been designed to blind enemy reconnaissance to impending blows in the western Pacific.

Chinese forces were succeeding in their Yunnan battle but encountered a new flood of Japanese power aimed at consolidating the victory at Hengyang. Chungking said its forces held one-third of Tengchung and were whittling down the enemy garrison. This city helps control movement on the Burma Road, which the Chinese are trying to reopen.

Northwest of Hengyang reinforced Japanese pushed two columns in an enveloping move around Chinese forces. To the south the Chinese made some progress in holding the enemy off the Hankow-Canton Railroad gap.

In western Burma the Japanese retreating from India moved so fast as to suggest a general withdrawal to the south.

Tokyo announced that two more Japanese generals had died in line of duty abroad.

HEAVIEST BARRAGE YET OF BUZZ BOMBS

Allies Drive Toward Spot Where Robots Launched

LONDON, Aug. 23.—(AP)—South England today suffered its heaviest dawn barrage of flying bombs yet, as Allied armies beat toward the launching platforms in Pas-de-Calais beyond the Seine.

The robots came so fast gunners had no respite in throwing up a terrific curtain of ground fire. Clouds of smoke over the sea indicated the number of bombs brought down in the channel.

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Liberation of Paris—most glorious moment in the rebirth of a great nation—gives us striking confirmation of a momentous fact which has been emerging gradually from the blaze of battle—that Hitler has lost control of the Nazi machine, both civil and military, through which he has ruled France since her tragic collapse.

It isn't merely that his organization has gone to pieces in Normandy, or in Brittany, or in southern France, but that his entire regime of occupation is in a state of dissolution. He no longer can call on the north to help the south, or the east to aid the west. The vast civilian population which he enslaved is out of hand. His reign in France is, in his own language, kaput—mashed.

The significance of this is, of course, that France during all these tragic years has been the main German shield against attack by the western Allies. We always knew the only way Hitler could be defeated was by invasion of France.

When the Allies finally drove ashore in Normandy, in the greatest and most dangerous adventure of its kind in history, there was no anticipation that Hitler's machine would go to pieces as it has done. Its collapse means a speedy end to his power throughout all western Europe.

This breaking up of Hitler's organization in France has been brought about by many factors. Among these has been the cutting of vital communications over a long period by the dominating Allied air forces. Western Europe has been slashed to ribbons. Finally came the invasions, and the flanking of Paris which is the nerve center of the entire country.

And then there have been the French forces of the interior—the vast underground army of patriots who are called "Maquis." The measure of their contribution to the reclamation of their country is vast. Throughout all the years of enslavement and terrible privation they have kept the flame of independence burning.

So justice has made a happy gesture in decreeing that the Maquis should be the ones to take over their capital from the Boche. Pistol Totin' Patton with his armored columns which have flanked Paris, and all the other Allied fighting men, can grin with satisfaction as the Maquis run up the flag.

Well, having to all intents lost the battle of France, where does the Fuehrer turn next?

He had hoped to fling the Allies back into the sea on D-Day in Normandy. That would have given him a breathing space in which to intensify his efforts against the Russians. Since his fight in France is hopeless, one would expect him to pull back his defenses to the Rhine and make a final mighty effort to stand off the Red armies.

STORE CLOSING PLAN FOR V-DAY IS SOUGHT HERE

Uncertainty of Date and Time of Nazi Surrender Complicates Problem

Arranging a holiday for Victory Day—the day Germany surrenders to the Allies ending the war in Europe against Germany and her now unwilling satellites—has turned out to be one of the most complicated problems the merchants of Washington C. H. have faced in many a day.

That a holiday is in order, none has yet offered to dispute. The question, however, is when.

Behind it all lie the uncertainties of war.

A meeting has been called for Friday at 7:30 P. M. (fast time) in the Common Pleas Court room in the Court House. Just what will be taken up for discussion is still a matter of conjecture. But, right now one thing seems certain—some general agreement on store closing will be sought.

The question was put to W. L. Stambaugh, the city manager, Tuesday morning, and he agreed to take the lead in bringing the merchants together. Whether he or someone else will conduct the meeting is not yet certain. The appeal was made to the city manager, it was said, because the Chamber of Commerce has only a "skeleton organization" now and is not in a position to act.

However, Albert Bryant, the Chamber of Commerce treasurer and acting secretary, is said to have suggested that state headquarters of that organization be asked for an outline of plans adopted in other cities. He added that he would make the request. If these are received in time, it was considered probable that they would be used as a guide for an agreement on closing here.

There also was the intimation that the city manager might want to take up the question of police protection against traffic jams and other emergencies.

The general impression now is that if word of the surrender reaches here during the time when stores are normally closed, the doors would not be opened the next day; that if word comes any time before noon or possibly 2 P. M., the doors would be closed and the management and clerks would take the rest of the day off. However, if word comes after that time, the doors would be open.

He is fighting fiercely to hold the line of the Vistula and East Prussia, and perhaps will continue to devote his main effort to the eastern front while carrying out a holding operation along the Rhine against the western Allies. His position in the eastern theater isn't a happy one, for the Russians give indications of being about set for a mighty effort to smash the Vistula line. Meantime their new offensive into Rumania threatens to render the Balkans untenable for the Nazis.

ever, if word comes later in the day, it was considered possible that the stores would also close as soon as possible and then take a holiday the following day.

The complexity in making arrangements arises, it is generally agreed, from the fact that there is no way of knowing in advance either the date or time of day the Germans will quit. For that reason, it was explained, the meeting will seek to make a set of general plans that would fit any occasion.

SOME PARTS OF OHIO SOAKED BUT DROUGHT UNBROKEN IN OTHERS

oleon, Tiffin and Cambridge reported less than half an inch. "Some areas," Minding reported, "have had ample rain, but in other sectors, particularly in the northwestern part of the state, the drought is still unrelieved."

In central Ohio the rains came too late to do the corn much good, Minding said. At Irwin, on the Champaign-Madison-Union county line, the weather station reported pastures and meadows revived but most corn beyond help.

The Dayton weather station reported no rains in some sections of Montgomery County, while in others heavy showers had improved pastures, tobacco and tomatoes, although corn and soybeans generally were suffering from the earlier dry spell.

FURTHER INVESTIGATION OF MELON PATCH RAID

An investigation of the theft of 11 small melons from a patch near the waterworks will be continued, Juvenile Judge Otis B. Core said today.

William Wilson appeared before Judge Core Wednesday morning but until the three other boys involved in the raid are located, the action will be suspended until a more thorough examination can be made, Judge Core said.

LEGIONNAIRES BACK FROM CONVENTION

Rehabilitation Director for State Authorized

Members of Paul H. Hughey Post today were back home from the Ohio American Legion convention at Columbus and ready to give detailed explanations and interpretations of policies adopted to their comrades at the next meeting.

Most of the post's officers attended the majority of the sessions, taking notes and making preliminary studies for fitting the state program to that of the post.

Military training for the country's youth was advocated by the convention as one of the policy highlights.

After voting the appointment of a full-time service director who will be responsible for rehabilitation throughout the state and electing officers, the 26th annual convocation was brought to a close.

Delegates chose Martin V. Coffey, national vice-commander of the American Legion, national committeeman from the Ohio department, and raised Richard Lindemann of Delphos from vice-commander to commander, succeeding Rossiter S. Williams of Oak Hill.

Harry Eaton of Ashland, president of the fifth district peace conference following World War I, defeated Don W. Schoeppe, Warren, for the post of vice-commander.

The auxiliary elected Mrs. Carl Zeller of Gibsonsburg to the presidency, replacing Mrs. A. M. Davidson of Chillicothe.

Other newly-elected officers include Mrs. Louicks Brown, Kenton, vice-president. Mrs. Lee E. Moore, Zanesville, was retained as treasurer.

Six district presidents were elected. They are Mrs. Karl F. Kapff, Bowling Green, District 1; Mrs. Willis Frazee, Dayton, District 3; Mrs. Darl Chance, Bucyrus, District 5; Mrs. Ray Elwell, Portsmouth, District 7; Mrs. John E. Doye, Youngstown, District 9, and Mrs. Robert Leslie, Bridgeport, District 11.

Canadian soldiers at last are fighting as members of their own army. They and their countrymen can well be proud that the Canadian 1st army, organized in England in 1942, is finally operating in France as a separate entity. And we in this country, as admirers of our good neighbor and ally to the north, can understand and share that pride.

In this war as in the last one, Canadians have won the reputation of being among the world's best soldiers. As such they have been called on to do a lot of tough and bloody tasks. Two years ago at Dieppe they displayed a bravery that can stand in their country's history with that of their fathers at Ypres, the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Amiens and Cambrai.

Canadians have distinguished themselves in the Italian campaign, and in the recent smash through German defenses at Caen. In the dark days after Dunkirk, Canadian troops were England's best hope to repel the expected Nazi invasion.

Canadian fliers have participated in all the great raids on Germany and occupied Europe, often making up 30 to 35 percent of RAF personnel. And Canadian sailors have manned almost half the total convoy operations between America and Britain.

Canada, as we well know, has done far more than her per capita share toward victory. Her army of 478,000, navy of 80,000, and air force of 203,000 men are a tremendous force from a country of 11,500,000 people. All the men on overseas duty are volunteers.

This contribution has been made almost anonymously as part of the British military force. Canada is a young, proud, strong nation. Naturally she appreciates national recognition.

Her industry has built up a navy from what was almost literally one tugboat before the war to a fleet that could put more than 100 ships into the D-Day invasion. Her industry has helped to transform a few Canadian infantry divisions into what is probably the most heavily armored force in any of the world's armies—a sort of elite assault corps.

In the Allied plan of teamwork which General Eisenhower has preached so earnestly and practiced so superbly the Canadians now have their own team. They are not subsidiaries any more, but equals. In view of their spirit, their accomplishments and their sacrifices, this is as it should be.

The Difference

Joe E. Brown, comedian and philosopher, has been in "almost every combat area where American boys are stationed." Returning recently from Italy, he denied that there is any "lust for killing" among troops from the United States. "Our commanders," he told the American Magazine, "have taught them how to kill. . . But they have not made them like it, and they never will. They are doing it because it is a job that has to be done, but it gives them no pleasure."

Of course, Mr. Brown does not intend to suggest that American soldiers are "soft." The Germans and the Japs know that. But the business of war has not been glorified among us as the noblest of human enterprises. No American ever has attempted to emulate Von Moltke and Von Treitschke in praise of armed conflict as a benefit to humanity in itself. The universal testimony of the press, radio, motion pictures, documentary photographs, soldiers' and sailors' letters and the impressions of professional and lay observers in the combat zones has been to one single effect—namely, that to Americans the struggle for victory is nothing but a duty, never an experience which they enjoy.

Today's Horoscope

You are robust and vigorous, excel in outdoor sports, and are skillful in any athletic contest, if today is your natal day. You have a keenly alert and inquisitive mind, an abundance of energy, are resourceful, kind, and make close friends very easily. You love your home dearly, and will be very happy in marriage. Exceptional good fortune is portended, and health greatly improves. Business expands rapidly. Promotion and gain through the aged are probable. Forge ahead. A child born today will be artistic, literary, refined, generous, humane and popular. He or she will also be quick-tempered and liable to disappointment through friends.

Perhaps this is the fundamental difference between the Axis and the United Nations. It is no accident, certainly, that the element of chivalry persists among American fighters even in the face of savagery. Nearly two thousand years of Christian teaching has not been in vain. Mr. Brown, who himself has lost a son in the war, says: "It wasn't necessary to hate all the individuals they (the leaders of our enemies) had duped." The Martyred Founder of Christianity made a similar distinction when he taught the separate identity of one human soul from another. All are brothers, according to His doctrine, but salvation is achieved by the development of the personal spirit. The concept of ordered freedom for which the Allies contend has the same origin.

The Public Will Pay

Recently a business man accosted a friend who said: "Well, Doctor, I see where they are going to socialize your business under the Federal Social Security Act."

The doctor, who had spent his life helping the ill and afflicted in his community, regardless of their financial circumstances, said: "Oh no, my friend, they are going to socialize you. When the federal government takes six percent from your earnings and six percent from your employer on wages paid you up to a specified amount, tells you what doctor to go to, when, and where, you will be getting the benefits of socialism, not me. When that day comes I will go back to pipe fitting, which is just working with a different kind of pipes than those in a human."

Yes, it's the public, not the doctors, that would suffer from politically appointed physicians. There would no longer be incentive for the better doctors to carry on. An independent pipe fitter would have more future than a socialized doctor.

Related Ills of Nose, Throat, Ear

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
THE SPECIALTY of the nose and throat was not joined to that of the ear just because all the structures and organs involved happen to be above the collar line. The nose, throat and ear combine to form a physiologic unit. They are connected together anatomically by the Eustachian tube, the membrane lined semi-collapsible passage from the back of the throat to the middle ear. Infections of the throat always threaten the ear. Nearly all acute disease of the ear and many, if not most, of the chronic diseases of the ear originate from some disorder of the nose or throat.

No better illustration of this can be brought forward than the brilliant demonstration of Dr. Costen, of St. Louis, that in many elderly people their deafness dates from removal of all the teeth and results from the toothless lower jaw closing so completely that it shuts off the lower end of the Eustachian tube in the back of the throat.

Acute diseases of the nose, throat and ear are usually amenable to successful treatment, although the conditions are often complicated and require skillful handling.

Chronic Disorders

Chronic disorders of the nose, throat and ear are notoriously stubborn and resistant to treatment. The subject of one of these disorders must reconcile himself, or herself, to adjustment rather than final and complete cure. Modern medical science has, however, devised a number of methods of treatment that improve even if they do not completely cure these conditions.

Chronic sinus infection of the nose occurs in three predominant forms—(1) chronic suppurative sinusitis, which arises from a pus infection; (2) hyperplastic sinusitis, which is partly, or largely, due to allergy or hypersensitivity to foods or dust or flowers or odors, and (3) mixed forms, which are greatly in the majority.

One of the most important lessons that nose specialists have learned about these conditions is the role of allergy in the causation of discomfort. A person may start with a pure germ infection in his sinuses, but after he has had it a while he acquires an allergy, a sensitiveness to foods and dusts which did not use to affect him at all.

Allergy Tests

In diagnosis of these conditions, allergy tests are added to the fundamental examinations of history, intranasal inspection, transillumination, X-ray, and study of the secretions. Treatment stresses systemic factors involving general health, removal of local mechanical obstruction to proper drainage, local treatment and control of allergic irritations. These last have largely replaced the repeated surgical operations that formerly were so frequent. Proetz's dictum is now more often observed—"More surgery is almost never an improvement on too much surgery done before."

Chronic ear infections, especially in children, are now recognized as usually due to enlarged and infected adenoids. The consequent complete, or partial, blockage of the orifices of the Eustachian tubes results in slowly progressing deafness and recurring attacks of middle ear suppuration. Before the age of puberty recurrence is very common after removal of the adenoids. For these cases, because the infected adenoid tissue is spread over such a wide area, complete surgical removal is impossible and the most modern improvement in treatment of such cases is irradiation in doses too small to injure surrounding structures. Radium or radon applied by a special applicator is of great value in such a form of treatment.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

Matthew went out to his car and up to a patient, a boy who was very ill. Matthew arranged for an ambulance and went with the boy to the hospital. He stayed there most of the night. Toward morning there was a change, and for the better. . . . Matthew thought: Suppose we'd had a son, Judith and I, and he'd grown up. . . .

Later he went home, unshaved, dead for sleep, to call his office and check his appointments, to throw himself down on the bed for half an hour, and sleep until Olga called him.

Mary and Lynn were still in Bermuda. He heard from his mother every week. She was happy, she wrote.

Matthew dined with the Morleys and the Taylors. They were so careful not to speak of Judith. And on the night he dined with the Taylors he went home early and sat down before the fire, lighted his pipe and tried to think.

He thought: Judith left me because—and it boils down to this—she believes me to be selfish. Very well. What's to prevent my going after her, for the same reason? Because I am selfish, because I want her, because I need her.

Why, exactly, did he need her? Because nothing was really good without her. . . . neither the parties she attended nor the theater nor the city. Nothing. Why last night, Olga's dinner hadn't been to his liking. Olga was slack when Judith wasn't there. The servants don't like me, Matthew told himself; they tolerate me because of her.

He needed her in his house, he needed her in his life, he loved her because of all the gifts she brought him.

Matthew had said, "You needn't come back." He had his pride. Well, confound it, he had his selfishness too and that was more than his pride!

He went to the telephone and called Sam Morley to announce: "I'm flying to the Coast. I want to talk to you about the office."

Sam said, without inflection, "No reason why you can't get away. Jim Garrison would take over for you. How long will you be gone?"

"Long enough to bring Judith back."

"Good!" said Sam. "We've all missed her."

Eva Lambert saw him first, coming up the path. She hadn't been able to believe her eyes. There he was, getting out of the taxi, walking toward her. The bungalow was bright with sunshine and the birds sang and Eva had been in the garden with Judith.

When she came west, Judith had said merely, "I've come home to you, mother, because I have to think things out."

Now Matthew said, "Well, here I am. . . . where's Judy?"

Eva had a hundred things to ask him: How is your mother? What have you been doing to yourself? But she saw his eyes. Everything could wait. She said, "I'm glad to see you, dear. She's in the garden. . . . up that little path."

But he was already on the path, turning the corner and lost to view. Judith was cutting flowers. She wore a very full-skirted dress splashed with bright, impossible flowers. Her hair was bright in the sunshine. Her face, he saw, was grave and much thinner than he remembered it.

Matthew cried, "Judy," and she turned, the flowers fell from her hands. She went perfectly white; he caught her just as she toppled.

He carried her down the path and into the house and Eva followed distractedly.

"Put her down there," said Eva, "I'll get water, I'll—"

The living room was long, and bright with sunlight. Matthew laid his wife on the big couch and knelt beside her. Her hands were cold in his own. But presently her eyes opened.

Eva came in and he waved her away. "She's all right," he said.

Judith said, "I—I was just the shock." She tried to sit up and he sat beside her and took her in his arms. He said, "I've come for you."

The color was back in her cheeks. She asked, "Why?"

"Because," he told her deliberately, "I'm selfish. You've always said that and it's true. Probably I won't change. But because I'm selfish I have to have you, no matter how unhappy I make you. I'll try not to, Judy. I'll try to see things as you do. I don't know whether I'll succeed or not. But I will try. I can't," he said, "get along without you."

She said, after a moment, "If you need me, I'll come. That's all I ever wanted."

He asked, with heartbreaking humility, "May I kiss you—now?"

A little later Judith drew away from him and leaned back against the couch. She said, "I've prayed, every day, every night. . . ."

"Stubborn," Matthew said; "you wouldn't let me know—"

"No. You said, 'Don't come back.' I couldn't, could I? You had to come get me. And you did," she said, "you did."

"Pure selfishness," he reminded her.

"Not exactly. Just the selfishness that's only half a self when the other half is missing."

He said gravely, "I'll never be all you want me to be, Judy. You'll be hurt and disappointed often."

She declared, "That's a long step ahead, isn't it, that you can think that and say it?"

He said, "I didn't even ask you to come back," and while she looked at him smiling, the blue eyes luminous, he asked her, "Will you, Judy? Will you come back?"

She leaned her head against his shoulder and smiled. "Have we solved our problem? I wonder. I'll go home with you, and we will work it out together. It won't always be easy."

She was silent a moment. Then she added, "I took advantage of you, Matthew, going to pieces like that, a while ago. . . . But I've been so wretched and I had almost stopped hoping."

He said, "You've made yourself ill."

He took her thin little face in his hands and looked into her eyes. . . . "I had a cold, and it hung on," explained Judith. "And I haven't been eating or sleeping much. I'll be all right now, Matthew. Please don't worry." She smiled radiantly.

"You're the doctor," she reminded him.

"It was I who made you ill," he admitted.

"I believe in you," she said; "I've always loved you but now I believe in you."

He murmured, after a moment, "You wanted a child, terribly."

"I still do. But you don't. Children can be barrier as well as bond. You would have to adjust yourself. Now, today, you think you could. Later, after we are together again, perhaps you couldn't. I don't know. I have been realizing all these weeks that unless it was fulfillment for you too it wouldn't be for me. Not wholly."

He said, "I've been so possessive."

"I know."

"You have so much to give a child," he said haltingly. "I've known it always. That's what I was afraid of, Judy. But I am beginning to see that what you would give would not rob me, after all, but would rather—"

He hesitated and said, low—"enrich me."

She said, "There's plenty of time, Matthew. I mean it differently—not as you used to mean it."

Matthew nodded. He put out his hand. "Come here," he said, "come closer." Holding her, with his cheek against her hair, he said, "I'll never let you go, Judy. You belong to me." He stopped and said, "No, that isn't it is it? We belong together."

And after a long time, he asked wonderingly, "I haven't cried since I was a kid. Do you suppose it's because I'm so happy?"

She thought: He hasn't asked it, perhaps he never will, but it will be all right, it has to be all right.

Yet he asked it now, urgently, humbly. He asked: "Judy, are you happy too?"

She lifted her warm, eager mouth to his. And answered, blind with the healing tears, "Darling, forever . . . and as never before."

Mr. and Mrs. North Make Bow to Doorman

By JEAN MEEGAN

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, August 23.—Two things happened one Sunday afternoon 11 years ago in Greenwich Village that gave to the world of make believe two new sleuths: "Mr. and Mrs. North." The wife of the drama critic of the New York Sun, Mrs. Richard Lockridge, had an argument with the doorman of the "Mystery of American Art" (he wouldn't admit her because she was carrying what he called a "bundle"—she demurred it was just a bunch of flowers).

In a fine, female huff she headed for home and exploded the episode at her husband, who had a theater-piece in the typewriter. He yanked it out and ran up a few pages on his version of what probably happened at the museum and it ultimately was published in a magazine.

Frances Lockridge insisted on fictitious names for the characters—she was squeamish about having her own used—and thus "Mr. and Mrs. North" were sprung into the slick paper world.

Coincidentally, Mrs. Lockridge began, as people will, to write a murder mystery. She hadn't touched a typewriter since she'd been a reporter in Kansas City 10 years before. Certainly she hadn't had any personal experience with unnatural death.

She simply had a penchant for figuring out ways a neighbor might be murdered without the cops catching the killer until page 323. Lockridge admired her plotting but thought a certain amount of levity could be injected into the thriller if "Mr. and Mrs. North" were along. As it turned out he was right.

"We wrote five novels about the North's right there," Frances explained, nodding toward a tiny, bureaucratically neat study in their four room apartment overlooking Washington Square. Also a Broadway play and 100 short stories were tossed off by the Lockridges in that same little room.

"We used to have fun doing it (Dick is now a Navy lieutenant and the collaboration is over for the time being). For two or three months we would talk things over. I outlined the plot—made a list of characters and dreamed up a setting."

Lockridge typed out the results in about six weeks—and then there was another month spent in revisions. The radio show running now: "Mr. and Mrs. North" Wednesday nights at 8 o'clock over NBC is under the supervision of Frances. She doesn't write the show but the name belongs to her and Dick. They make $500 a month on the radio rights.

The movie version—not done by them—netted the Lockridges only $10,000. However, they have comforting royalties from amateur and summer theater rights. Also in on the North prosperity is a restaurant around the corner from the Lockridges.

Mr. and Mrs. North have run away with Mr. and Mrs. Lockridge. People at parties slip and call Frances "Mrs. North." I have moments of being Mrs. North," Frances admits—"but not in public."

Washington at a Glance

WASHINGTON — The applause, both official and civilian, that greeted the War Production Board's "limited reconversion" to peacetime production of about 75 classes of civilian consumer articles was generous.

The consensus of congressmen and other government officials was that WPB Director Donald Nelson had taken a step in the right direction and that it wasn't a timid step either. But civilians and most manufacturers and distributors who might be affected gave a gleeful shout of anticipation. WPB officials didn't like that. Nelson and others hastened to point out that this would be a slow process as long as a gun is being fired in Europe.

Impatient consumers who plan autumn treks to the stores are going to be disappointed. Many industries and localities which visualize a quick resumption of production of articles affected by the order are going to be disappointed, too.

It may be assumed, of course, that there are plenty of materials and metals available to make those things listed for production. Manufacturers who do get back into the peace production picture will have no great difficulty on that score.

The joker is the manpower clause in the order which specifies that not only must all "spot" or local war material and manpower requirements be met, but that surplus manpower areas must fill the war industry manpower shortages before they can put their own plants back into producing civilian goods.

Just how far regional WPB officials will go in strict interpretation of this clause remains to be seen but it could be far enough that some communities will not be able to reconvert, even with a generous portion of idle workers. If the surplus labor refuses to migrate and regional officials hold up certifications for production until they do, a deadlock might result.

What WPB officials hope and expect (and War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt and his staff agree) is that this phase of the order will go a long way toward straightening out some of the remaining war manpower shortages.

Informal Recitals Presented Here By Piano Pupils

Two piano class demonstrations were presented by Mrs. Ethel Willis during the past week at her home studio on Van Deman Street, when mothers and a few guests were invited. The first was a beginners' class lesson which had finished two months' study, ages seven and eight. Jeanne Miller who has studied piano about one and one-half years, was a special guest performer on the program.

Rhythm, singing, folk dancing, blackboard work, ear training and keyboard were all beautifully demonstrated. Following this a program of music was presented.

Mrs. Noah Baughn Observes Eighty-seventh Birthday Quietly at Home Here

Mrs. Noah Baughn

Mrs. Noah Baughn, is today receiving congratulations from her many friends on her eighty-seventh birthday at her home at 820 Dayton Avenue.

Mrs. Baughn has lived most of her life in Fayette County. Her grandparents were among the first settlers of Fayette County, coming from Virginia. Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Carr, her mother was a descendant of the Harrods, who founded Harrodsburg, Kentucky.

Mrs. Baughn has been a member of the Sugar Creek Baptist Church for sixty-five years and attends church and Sunday School regularly. She recently promoted a group of Red Cross sewers for making "buddy bags" for soldiers and sailors. She has been president of the Ladies' Aid Society of this church for several years.

Mrs. Baughn has two children, Miss Golda Baughn, a teacher on the Washington high school faculty, and Mr. Wert Baughn; one grandson, Sgt. V. P. Baughn, who is stationed in the Officers School of the Army Air Corps at Orlando, Florida, and two great grandchildren, David Lee and Beverly Ann.

Mrs. Baughn will spend her birthday cooking, sewing, quilting, working in her garden and receiving the best wishes of her family and many friends.

Fall Fashions Reviewed by Mrs. Cleo Warner

Mrs. Cleo Warner of Montgomery Ward's Fashion Department, has just returned from Indianapolis, Indiana, where she attended the semi-annual Ward Fashion Clinic, conducted by Miss Olive Smith, nationally-known stylist and fashion authority and Mr. Ben Minsker, fur stylist.

"This winter's fashions show a trend toward quieter femininity, so becoming to American women," Mrs. Warner said.

"This year's fashions are more adaptable to the busy life of an American woman. There is far less definition between 'dressy' and 'sports' clothes, which is certainly a boon to the women who must dress on a limited budget. The majority of costumes can be worn with equal assurance to the office, to shop in, to luncheon, dinner, or to the movies."

Simplicity is the keynote of this year's fashions. Simplicity of line, simplicity of color. Black, wisteria, watermelon red, keiley green, soldier blue and grey looms on the fashion as the most important basic colors. Sequin trim as well as side drape styles and wools are good.

Simple dresses lend themselves to all kinds of accessory changes. Skirts are short and youthful.

Hand bags were never prettier, nor more practical.

Classic untrimmed gloves remain a favorite to be worn for every occasion.

Chesterfield and casual coats are the most economic. Grey is taking the place of camel tan. Brown, keiley green, purple, black and red are all good fall basic colors.

Mr. Minsker, Ward's only fur stylist, held a one-day meeting for furs only, when he explained the full process every fur coat goes through until it is made.

"I was so thrilled at the preview of this winter's fashions," Mrs. Warner said. "They're all so pretty, so feminine and gracious."

Beverly Girton Attends Premiere In Los Angeles

Miss Beverly Girton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Girton, who is spending the summer in California with her brother, Dustin Girton, was complimented with two reserved tickets to see the world premiere of "Since You Went Away" at Carthage Circle in Los Angeles, recently. The tickets were sent to her and autographed "With Love" by June Allyson, star of "Two Girls and

Mr. Girton, and Miss Girton were seated among such noted movie people as Alan Ladd, Joan Crawford, Judy Garland, Paul ette Goddard, Walter Pidgeon, Deanna Durbin, Shirley Temple, Claudette Colbert, Adolph Menjou, Randolph Scott and Robert Walker. The young people were accompanied to the premiere by Miss Alyce Canfield and Mr. Joel Benton. Miss Canfield is a feature writer for Charm, Look, Cosmopolitan and movie magazines.

Last week Miss Girton was a luncheon guest of Miss Canfield at the "Brown Derby" in Hollywood and in the evening joined a dinner party at Eaton's, exclusive Hollywood restaurant. Later the party went to Bill Jordan's for dancing.

CHRISTMAS IN AUGUST IS NOT NUTS AFTER ALL

What To Give G. I. Joe for Yuletide? Suggestions Given Here

Christmas in August isn't as crazy as it sounds when you stop to think that all parcels for servicemen and women overseas must be mailed between September 15 and October 16—and the earlier the better.

The packages should not weigh more than five pounds or measure more than 15 inches in length or 36 inches in length and girth combined—but you can get absolutely complete directions for mailing and addressing at the Post Office.

What to mail is as much a problem as squeezing it into a small package—especially so if the soldier overseas has written home no hints about what he wants or needs. Here are some suggestions:

The boys are well fed but they like delicacies. The hitch is in the mailing. Homemade cookies and cakes take an awful beating and worms get at them first unless they are properly packed. Olives, anchovies, sardines, crabmeat, fruit juices, nuts and chocolates (if they are packed in tin), rate high. Strictly taboo is hard candy which is strictly G. I. Fruit cake and cookies must be packed tightly in tin to stand the time and trip.

In the things to use category come books, (pocket size are best), games, stationery, knives, billfolds (remember, no leather in the tropics), sun glasses, pipes, pipe cleaners, watches, insect repellents, saddle soap, razor blades, toilet kits, pocket combs, steel pocket mirrors, foot powders, lotions, wash cloths, small towels, harmonicas, mouth organs, waterproof bags, shoe shine kits and maps of the USA. Cigarettes the G. I. can get wholesale.

Most of the servicemen's clothing is issued to him. But there are a few things he can use. Sweaters, the sleeveless type; wool helmets; sturdy leather gloves, clogs and moccasins for their few "at ease" movements. Identification bracelets and plastic dog-tag chains.

REAL AIR AGE TO COME AFTER WAR'S END

Civilian Aviation Already Benefitting From Military Improvements

CONSTELLATION—This huge plane spanned continent in under 7 hours.

SKYMASTER—This giant Douglas cargo plane is called the flying box car.

LIBERATOR LINER—This giant Pullman of the skyways can accommodate 50 passengers. Note how wings protrude from the center of fuselage.

By JOSEPH A. BORS
Central Press Writer
WASHINGTON — Gigantic strides made by the United States in the field of aviation during wartime are expected to be reflected in the post-war world in mass-travel by air, both at home and abroad, and in the increased use of planes to move valuable freight.

Although civilian airlines will remain geared to the needs of the armed forces for the duration, far-sighted travel executives are busy in what spare time they have planning routes, rates and service improvements in preparation for the day the public will feel free to move about again.

It goes without saying that civilian aviation will benefit greatly from the developments achieved under the pressure of war necessity, including speedier, bigger planes with more safety devices and improved airfield facilities both at home and on the routes across the oceans and continents.

Airline experts assert that these developments will result in lower rates for domestic and foreign travel. Competition, after the war, should bring better and cheaper accommodations on railroads and steamship lines for persons who desire to travel in a more leisurely manner.

Constellation Shows Trend
Best example of the trend was the recent record flight of the giant Constellation from the Pacific coast to Washington in about seven hours. Routine flights at such terrific speed are not expected to come immediately after the war, but travel time from coast to coast will be cut considerably in the near future.

Recently the War Department announced it was turning back to commercial airlines some of the planes it had commandeered, and this situation should improve rapidly from now on to assure more frequent flights between major cities.

Land planes like the Constellation and the Douglas C-54 transport now used by the Army will be available for transatlantic and transpacific hops by civilians once Germany and Japan are crushed. For persons who would prefer flying boats for overwater travel, there will be craft like the giant

Youngsters from modest homes who never traveled further than the next town have been hopping to far-off places as passengers or crew members on Flying Fortresses and Liberators. They are forming habits of speedy travel that undoubtedly will affect civilian flying in peace-time.

New planes are being built designed especially to carry cargo, and after the war these will be used to move perishable goods

Martin Mars, now being used by the Naval Air Transport Service for routine runs between San Francisco and Honolulu.

Once the fare cost is reduced, persons of moderate means should be able to visit far-off places even on a two-week vacation. Experts estimate that no point on earth will be more than 50 or 60 hours flying time from the nearest major air port in the United States.

An air-minded America on a scale undreamed of in the late 1930s is assured by the flying generation of youngsters who are becoming veteran airmen in the flak-filled skies over Europe, the Pacific and the Far East.

Forming New Habits
Youngsters from modest homes who never traveled further than the next town have been hopping to far-off places as passengers or crew members on Flying Fortresses and Liberators. They are forming habits of speedy travel that undoubtedly will affect civilian flying in peace-time.

New planes are being built designed especially to carry cargo, and after the war these will be used to move perishable goods

Thus all indications point to the fact that the real air age in the world will begin within a comparatively short time after the bombs stop falling.

FAST SALESMAN FAST
IN NORTH CAROLINA JAIL
ASHEVILLE, N. C. (P)—A fast worker, capitalizing on the whisky shortage, posed as a Pullman porter to call at business offices and tell secretaries their bosses while on a recent train trip ordered some whisky.

Explaining he had it outside in the car, the "porter" collected in cash and brought in four whisky cases which later proved to contain not whisky but potatoes or salt.

Sheriff Laurence E. Brown said the man took nearly $5,000 from victims in southeastern cities before he was caught.

Cook young tender dandelion greens like spinach and serve garnished with hard-cooked egg.

Never keep tomatoes, melons and other products subject to mold in a tightly closed damp place.

Never put cold water in enamel pans while the pan or pot is hot.

'SAFE TO CANS' URGENT WARNING TO TINSERS

Other Recoverable Forms of Tin Becoming Less Available

Tin is needed badly according to Maynard Craig, the county's salvage chairman, and all users of tin cans are urged to step up the saving of same with renewed effort.

Wartime requirements for pig-tin are increasing while the supplies of tin are decreasing, and the war effort depends to a greater extent upon the tin we can recover from used cans because all other recoverable forms of tin are becoming less available, he explained.

Tin is vitally necessary for packing food for fighting men and it is also the only metal which can be used to hermetically seal ammunition boxes to insure dry powder in the cartridges. More than 500,000,000 tin cans will have to be salvaged this year to supply this one need alone, Craig declared, adding every battleship contains 76 tons of tin and every submarine uses more than three tons of tin in its complete make-up.

Two simple steps to amazing New STRENGTH

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD

THESE two important steps may help you to overcome the discomforts or embarrassment of sour stomach, achy, jerky nerves, loss of appetite, indigestion, digestive complaints, weakness, poor complexion!

A person who is operating on only 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 60% normal is severely handicapped. So with ample stomach digestive juices PLUS RICH, RED BLOOD you can enjoy that sense of well-being which denotes physical fitness... mental alertness!

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, try SSS Tonic for a few days. It is just what you need as it is especially designed (1) to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and (2) to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient.

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win
Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits SSS Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it gets results—that's why so many say "SSS Tonic builds sturdy health—makes you feel like yourself again." At drug stores in 10 and 20 oz. sizes. U.S.S. Co.

Reds and Jays Split Double As Home Stand Is Ended

By JACK HAND
(By the Associated Press)

Emerging from their final eastern invasion with a slight limp and new respect for the Philadelphia A's and Washington Senators, the league-leading St. Louis Browns headed home via Detroit and Cleveland today bolstered by a 4-2 game lead and a friendly pat on the back from the schedule makers.

Trouble on their last two stops, where they lost six of eight starts, dampened the enthusiasm of rabid Brownie backers who had considered the flag "in the bag" but Luke Sewell's men still remained the solid choice on the basis of season-long consistency.

All American League clubs enjoy an open date today and only a Chicago at St. Louis night game is listed in the National.

With 34 games to play, the Browns' schedule calls for 23 at home and only five road dates after they complete the impending series in Detroit and Cleveland. The Tigers, likewise, finish at home but trail by six lengths and have dropped to fourth place. New York has 13 home dates in its last 37 and Boston has to hit the road for 27 of its remaining 35 tilts.

Brownies Blanked

Johnny Niggling blanked the Browns last night in Washington, 3-0, as the Sewell men wound up their trip with seven wins in 16 games. A scrap between Nels Potter and George Case touched off a free-for-all among the players in the seventh inning.

Boston missed a chance to gain in falling before Cleveland again, 5-3, when Steve Gromek outstayed the wild Emmett O'Neill, Detroit, the western club, slid down below the New Yorkers in bowing 9-7 at the Yankee Stadium. Hal Newhouse failed in his search for win No. 21, losing to rookie Mel Queen.

Russ Christopher took his seventh straight, longest streak of the year in the American, when he hurled Philadelphia to a 5-1 victory over Chicago's Johnny Humphries.

The Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Brooklyn, 7-5, their 17th win in the last 18 games, but lost ground to St. Louis as the defending champs upped their lead to 17 games by twice trimming Boston 7-4 and 2-1. Harry Brecheen notched his 13th triumph at Jim Tobin's expense and Max

Futurity Is Won By Titan Hanover

GREENVILLE, Aug. 23.—(AP)—Titan Hanover, owned by E. R. Harriman of Goshen, N. Y., won the Horseman's Futurity for two-year-olds—worth $8,490 to his owner—established a new world's record for half mile ovals, and contributed to setting another mark yesterday at the Darke County Fair.

He ran the second heat in the feature event in 2:05 1/4, fastest time recorded, and broke Volo Sarog's record of 2:06 1/4 set at Saratoga in 1942.

Titan Hanover and Algiers were tied at the end of the second heat with one victory each. A third was run, and Titan won. Their combined times for the three mile runs—2:08, 2:05 1/4 and 2:07 1/4 set a new mark. The previous three-heat record was held by Volo Sarog, also set at Saratoga in 1942.

Algiers' second place money was worth $4,245 to owner E. J. Baker of St. Charles, Ill.

EXTRAVAGANZA OF GOLFDOM SWINGS INTO FIRST STAGES; THREE SHARE TOP PRO SPOT

E. L. SKELLEY

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—(AP)—That all-time record take of $19,600 by Slammin' Sammy Snead, along professional golf's money circuit in 1938 may be topped in the 72-hole All-American Open starting tomorrow at Tam O'Shanter.

Three favorites in George S. May's golf extravaganza—Harold (Jug) McSpadden, the defending champion and top money winner of 1944; Byron Nelson and Sammy Byrd—are within striking distance of the long-hitting Snead's financial success of six years ago.

"Jug," the smooth-swinging Philadelphia pro, has collected $21,600 in war bonds this season—good for $16,200 cash on the line.

RED BIRDS LOSE TWO TO MILLERS

(By the Associated Press)

Toledo and Louisville are up to their second-place see-saw tactics in the American Association race again and now it's the Mud Hens who are perched precariously in the No. 2 spot.

While the Colonels, who had held second by two percentage points, were losing to pace-setting Milwaukee, 6-4, last night, the Mud Hens waited to an 8-4 triumph over St. Paul to take over the runner-up berth by a full game.

Two doubleheaders were played last night, resulting in twin wins for Minneapolis and Indianapolis. The Millers bounced fourth-place Columbus, 4-3 and 6-4, while the Tribe polished off last-place Kansas City, 2-1 and 8-2.

Milwaukee's win over Louisville gave league-leader Earl Caldwell his 17th pitching triumph of the season, but he needed help from Floyd Speer, who took over in the seventh, and Julie Acosta who had rough going in the ninth before he struck out Earl Browne to end the game with the winning run on second base.

Toledo clinched things for Walt Brown, who scattered 10 St. Paul hits, with a four-run cluster in the first inning and three tallies in the third.

Minneapolis' double win over Columbus was spiced by a Red Bird protest that shortstop Pedro Gomez, recently obtained from the Washington Senators who started the first game for the Millers, was an ineligible player.

Columbus claimed the infielder was not acquired until after Aug. 15, deadline for receiving players from the major leagues.

Indianapolis registered its fifth twin triumph of the season over the Blues as Harry Kelley bested Charley Shanklin in a first-game mound duel and the Tribe blasted Vince De Biasi for 10 hits, six of them for extra bases, in the finale.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—AP—Wheat futures were under hedging pressure today and the deferred contracts sold at new seasonal lows while rye fluctuated over a wide range, opening weak, rallying at mid-session, then easing off in late dealings.

Commission Houses were sellers in the wheat pit but only in one or two instances were the offerings large. Resting orders gave the market some support and government buying discouraged other than a commercial trade.

A prominent local operator bought large quantities of rye after the initial downturn. Local traders and Commission Houses supplied the offerings and the late setback was attributed to a lull in buying and the easiness of wheat.

Commission Houses offered oats freely and the market also was affected by the weakness of other grains.

At the close wheat was unchanged to 1/4 lower than yesterday's finish. Oats were 1/4 higher, 1/4 lower.

Barley was off 1/4 to 6, September $1.14 1/2. Sows—$12.00 down.

RETURN OF OUR SOLDIERS MEANS A REAL PROBLEM

Major Collins of AMG Gives Fine Talk to Rotarians And Guests

"My observation and experiences in Africa, Sicily and Italy have convinced me, very definitely, of one thing—the people of the countries formerly occupied by the enemy in this war, especially the poorer countries where cities have been destroyed and homes bombed, do not need a program of continued help from us or any other nation. What they do require above all is aid that will enable them to earn their own prosperity and to get back to a normal, or improved, mode of life."

This was one of the outstanding assertions made by Maj. Walter L. Collins of Columbus, an educator, who served many months with the U. S. Army as a member of the American Military Government in Italy, Africa and Sicily after those places were taken by the Allies from Germany in the present grim world war. He was the luncheon speaker Tuesday at the Country Club to Washington Rotarians and their guests.

Major Collins who returned to this country about two months ago is now on the reserve list of officers subject to recall to the AMG service at any time. He states that he does not expect to be recalled to the work unless unforeseen emergencies arise, since the organization work in the places he was stationed has now progressed to a point where less men are needed and, especially in Italy, where the Italian government is able to handle the situation to a large extent with its own people.

The speaker painted a remarkably vivid picture of life in the places where he was assigned and his viewpoint regarding the attitude which may be expected from the returning American soldier, made a strong impression upon his hearers among whom were many Rotary men for whom Tuesday was designated as Ladies Day.

Major Collins, who was formerly and is now again identified with the Ohio Department of Education, has appeared here to make addresses on other occasions in past years and is always welcomed as a very interesting speaker who leaves his hearers with something important to think over. He was president of Wilmington College for several years until 1940 when he joined the state educational department staff.

Referring to the return home of U. S. soldiers he declared that these men will come back with a much broader world vision than those of us who have remained here. "They will return," he asserted, "with one outstanding conviction—that we do not want this nation of ours to adopt totalitarian ideas. They have seen the futility and the tragedy of that style of government in the experiences they have encountered." He stated that this was a real challenge to democracy in this nation which we should make an example to the rest of the world.

He further made clear that he was certain that most returning soldiers who have kept their mental poise, will agree that nations of Europe and Africa which have been ravaged by war only want such aid as will help them to adjust themselves.

One of the highlights of Major Collins' talk was his plea that Europe's entanglement in the present bloody struggle should bring home the lesson made impressive in many places there that home and family life cannot be treasured too highly. He held of places in which he had spent much time where human life appeared to mean very little to the higher-ups. He had been assigned to some spots where there was virtual slavery, where young girls could be bought as wives for as little as $40 and where the claim for a donkey accidentally killed in the movement of U. S. supplies or war machines, could be settled at a stipulated price of $400 by the U. S. government, while only $250 would satisfy the claim for the life of an Arab similarly killed.

Elaborating on this theme regarding the sacredness of the home and the life of the individual as viewed in this country, he urged that we in America give our best thought to the future when our own soldiers come back. "The greatest service we

2,200 EXPECTED ENROLLMENT FOR COUNTY SYSTEM

Slight Decrease Over Peak Registration Last Year; More in Elementary

Although he expects an increase in enrollment among first graders next year, W. J. Hilty, superintendent of county schools, estimates 2,200 students will get their books when the county schools open for business September 6 for a half-day session. Last year, the peak enrollment was 2,255, Hilty recalled. He expects the four high school centers—Good Hope, Jeffersonville, Madison Mills and Bloomingburg—to have the largest enrollments. Roll call in the elementary schools will remain about the same, although Olive School will be nearly doubled since its consolidation with Buena Vista, Hilty said.

No definite announcement of the number of pupils enrolled will be available until after school begins, Hilty said.

can render," he said, "will be help toward aiding many of these men to the serious readjustments they must make in order to take up their normal lives again. They will need all the patience, tolerance and assistance in refinding themselves, that we can give. The complications will be a tremendous problem. In getting many of these boys back into the swing of their home life and adjustment to their families."

He mentioned that a chaplain in one army group related that 40 percent of the American soldiers who had conferred with him regarding their future had made the astounding statement that they did not want to go back to their own families or to the wives they had left.

Major Collins brought with him many specimens of native handicraft which he had picked up in Africa, Sardinia and other places. Following the close of the meeting he was surrounded for nearly an hour by some of his hearers who plied him with questions and examined the pottery, blankets, scarfs and jewelry he had placed on display.

He was highly complimented at the close of his talk in a response made by Attorney Ray Maddox who declared that the speaker's clear explanation of many puzzling conditions he had encountered and his advice to the people here at home, were among the most important messages ever to have been brought to Rotarians here.

In the absence of President W. H. Limes, who is out of the city, Vice-President Billie Wilson was in charge of the meeting and asked Supt. A. B. Murray to introduce the speaker.

Among servicemen present and introduced were Paul Pennington, pharmacist's mate 3rd class, U. S. Navy, stationed at Great Lakes, Frank Wean, with the medical corps of the U. S. Army at Camp San Luis Obispo in California, and Sgt. John Irwin, assigned to special duty at the White House, Washington D. C.

AUTO CLUB HERE GETS TOP AWARD ON ACHIEVEMENT

Howard Allen, the Secretary, Earns Group Honor for Meritorious Service

The Fayette County Automobile Club today is proudly displaying a new blue and gold banner, and Howard Allen, secretary of the Club is a $50 War Bond richer, as the result of meritorious achievements of the club last year.

The awards were made by the Ohio State Automobile Association at its annual convention at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus last week. The coveted banner comes to this club for the second consecutive year.

For his active part in the direction of the club's activities this past year, Secretary Allen, out of 77 Club managers, won top honors. Allen attended the meeting and received this tribute to his personal esteem and the banner for the club at the meeting.

There are 77 Automobile Clubs in Ohio and the banner won here was that offered to Group D, which comprises 14 of the total 77 clubs—whose memberships range from 1000 to 1500. Last year the club here was in the E Group but the membership has increased 21 per cent over last year, placing it in competition in the D group this year.

Each year a committee is appointed by the president of the state association to observe, during the year, the various activities of the individual clubs, such as outstanding work in the community, gain in membership, public reception and other commendable points.

The banner is made of dark blue felt with gold sized gold lettering and proclaims the Fayette County Automobile Club the champion in Group D for achievement in membership.

DECORATORS WORK ON TEEN AGE CLUB

Registrations May Be Made at Room Saturday

Teen Age Club's decorating committee put heads together Wednesday to decide just what kind of curtains should be hung at the big window facing Main Street in the South Main Street clubroom.

Virginia Mark, Jean Willis and Ruth Ann Perrill, plus Mrs. R. T. Andrews, are the committee. They will plan chair coverings and furniture arrangement as well as other decorative details. Mrs. Martha Reiff, chairman of the Mothers' Circle which sponsors the club, said today.

Many high schoolers who have not registered may do so Saturday at the club rooms, Mrs. Reiff announced. The membership fee of $1 goes into effect the moment the club is opened for business.

No definite estimate of expenses of painting, which is complete except for the floor, cleaning, moving furniture and other items in making the club ready to house its high school membership has been made yet, Mrs. Reiff said.

RECORD TAX IS COLLECTED FOR LAST HALF 1943

Total Is $160,920.69; Rate of Delinquents Shrinks to $8,559.21

Fayette Countians have just finished paying a record real estate tax, County Treasurer Willis McCoy said today.

The final tabulations and bookkeeping details were finished Wednesday morning on the $160,920.69 collection—called a record by the treasurer's office because of the number of people who paid the full year's tax in December. The figure announced represents collections for the last half of 1943.

Delinquents Shrink
Delinquent taxes on record now have shrunk to $8,559.21, it was reported. Last year at the same time, they were around $10,000.

A breakdown of the $160,920.69 collected shows $159,350.65 paid on real estate taxes and $1,570.04 on special street light sewer, ditches and street assessments.

This time last year the tax collection was $159,334.16, McCoy said. The increase in due and delinquent taxes paid is chalked up to the fact that "people are just paying." Delinquent taxes carried on the books for years have been cleared up, it was pointed out.

The tax books closed August 5, but the tremendous amount of detailed bookkeeping required postponed the announcement of the totals, it was explained.

WEDNESDAY MISTY RAIN FELL TO .21 OF AN INCH

That misty rain Wednesday morning amounted to something. It amounted to .21 of an inch, in fact.

No other rains in the county were reported, although the people in and around Good Hope today were still gloating over the downpour they had Monday night.

The temperature continued on the downgrade. Maximum recorded Tuesday was 83, contrasted with the 90 of Sunday and Monday. The air was one degree cooler at 8 A. M. Wednesday than on Tuesday.

ABOVE NORMAL RAINFALL
CINCLEVELLE — Rainfall in this area totals 7.31 inches so far this month, or 3.31 inches above normal for August.

SABINA MARINE IS WOUNDED IN ACTION

Lt. Chester Ledford, of Sabina, is reported wounded in action on Saipan, a telegram to his wife, the former June McCann, said.

Mrs. Ledford believes, however, that her husband's wound is but a slight one since he has never mentioned it in letters to her and since it is understood he stayed in combat through the battle of Saipan. He was reported wounded June 19.

Mrs. Ledford's last letter from her husband was dated August 10, eight days after the capture of Tinian. He leads a mortar platoon in the Fourth Marine and is the third Clinton County man to be wounded on Saipan.
